48 Young Albertans Attend Annual 4-H Conservation Camp

Forty-eight young Albertans attended the seventh annual 4-H Conservation Camp completed recently at the James River, Bible Camp located near Sundre, Alta.

The six-day camp is sponsored by Calgary Power Ltd., Alberta Power Limited and Northland Utilities Ltd. in co-operation with the 4-H and Junior Forest Warden Branch of the Alberta Department of Culture, Youth and Recreation; the Alberta Departments of Lands and Forests, and Environment and the Olds College.

The theme of this year's camp was "Five in One" with the five study areas: soil conservation, water conservation, forest conservation, fish and wildlife management and range management all encompassed in the general message — conservation. Each person attending the camp selected two areas of study from among the five and divided his or her time evenly between the two subjects. Lectures, slides and films occupied about one half of the 4-H camper's study time.

The rest of the time was spent on field trips to nearby rivers, streams, forests, grazing ranges and ranger stations.

Of course the campers' social life was not neglected either as ball games, singalongs, cookouts and a wind-up dance highlighted the six days. For those who had trouble rising (scheduled for 7 a.m.) there was the unexpected joy of being roused out of bed by a delegation of forty or so of his friends.

For the graduates of this year's 4-H conservation camp, the work is just beginning. Now comes the round of speaking engagements, meetings and film presentations at which campers will attempt to communicate to others in their communities the value of sound conservation practices.

Alberta School Boards Unanimous On Right To Levy Requisitions

Alberta School Boards are virtually unanimous in their opinion that they should have the right to levy requisitions on local assessment to meet the educational needs of their area, above those possible under funding by the province's Foundation Program.

These and other opinions are emerging as a result of a survey made of 150 school boards throughout Alberta by the Alberta School Trustees' Association. The survey, said Harold Gundersen, president of the trustee group, was undertaken in response to questions raised by the Alberta Minister of Education, at this summer's special general meeting of trustees in Calgary.

While the survey is not yet complete, it is apparent that trustees are concerned with rising education and other public costs. They favor controls on public spending at all levels of government, not just for education purposes. "So far the goat's horns have been pinned on the schools. Our spending is not out of line with other government spending," Gundersen said.

Mr. Gundersen said trustees favor a three year financial program in conjunction with provincial funding. This would allow proper and adequate planning for most economical expenditure of public funds.

The "Three R's" heads the list of educational priorities among all boards. A good elementary education is considered an absolute must by the province's school trustees. Responding boards want to do more for handicapped children.

There is high concern for fund availability for such purposes, and trustees indicate they will press for such support. Driver training courses won't be popularly contested with Alberta's school trustees, being generally found on a list of low-priority items.

The same lack of urgency applied to teaching of a second language, with some boards listing French specifically. Results of the survey will be presented to the government through the minister of education, in the near future, said Mr. Gundersen. Surprisingly, strong support for universal kindergarten did not appear.

Senior Citizens Camp At Waterton Lakes

The three-day senior citizens Canyon Church camp was an unqualified success.

Thirty-nine senior citizens were in attendance from Bellevue, Blairmore, Coleman, Hillcrest, Pincher Creek, Claresholm and Taber. They all enjoyed sight-seeing at Red Rock Canyon, Cameron Falls and the Buffalo-Paddock.

They then enjoyed a boat trip down Waterton lakes, a shopping spree and many other points of interest were viewed. Several evening closed three-quarters of a mile to Cradle Lake. Each evening was closed with a sing-song around the campfire.

The staff at camp provided extra special meals for the senior citizens. All returned home very satisfied and happy and are looking forward to next year when they hope to return.

Library Survey Made Here

A rural library study project was undertaken this summer in 132 communities across the province by the Alberta Department of Culture, Youth and Recreation.

The major objectives of the project are to evaluate library services, facilities and library usage and to ascertain public opinion on local libraries. The data gathered will assist in the future planning and development of library services in Alberta.

"Every citizen should have access to public library services," said the Hon. Horst A. Schmidt, Minister of Culture, Youth and Recreation, "and our aim is to work toward that goal."

Catherine Main from Pincher Creek covered Coleman, Blairmore, Bellevue, Pincher Creek, MacLeod, Grannum, Claresholm in record to the survey.

The survey in Coleman finished in June; in Bellevue in July and in Blairmore, August.

The survey consisted of family reading habits and library use of interviews to determine what the cross-section of the town public. An inventory is done of the library to determine just what media is available in the library and what services and operations offered by the library.

JOE CLARK, P.C. CANDIDATE ADDRESSES MEETING IN COLEMAN, AUGUST 19

Alberta's ability to develop extensive secondary industry will be determined in the next four years, Progressive Conservative candidate Joe Clark told a meeting in Coleman Saturday, August 19.

"All experts agree that Canada must develop a new National Industrial Policy," Clark said. "What they disagree about is what industries will go where." A National Industrial Policy would select areas where particular kinds of industry are to be encouraged, and then would shape laws and policy to achieve that goal.

Clark said that traditional national policy has been to concentrate rate secondary industry in central Canada, and leave the west for resource development and tourism.

"If that traditional view prevails, the west will be stacked against secondary industrial development in the west."

Clark believes Alberta would suffer particularly, because "we have the greatest potential for secondary industry — so we have the most to lose."

Alberta has a natural capacity for processing raw materials. The PC candidate suggested that other opportunities are being created by technical changes which let certain industries decentralize. He said increased Pacific trade would open still more possibilities.

"We're a different province than we were 25 years ago. Our biggest challenge is to make Ottawa recognize the difference."

Clark said the question was bound to be an issue in the next federal election "because the two parties clearly disagree about the future of Western Canada."

The Diefenbaker government opened the way for coal sales to Japan, which revived the Alberta coal industry, Dr. Lawrence Kindt reminded a Coleman audience Saturday night.

Dr. Kindt was Member of Parliament for Macleod constituency from 1966-1968. He was speaking on behalf of Joe Clark, PC candidate in the Rocky Mountain federal constituency.

Dr. Kindt recalled that Mr. Diefenbaker, as Prime Minister, pushed the proposal to export Alberta coal, and that was the basis of the jobs and growth in the west today.

"Other parties will claim credit for it," Dr. Kindt warned, "but the fact should be known that it was a national Conservative government which made the difference."

Joe Clark said that the future growth of Western Canada will be a major issue in the next federal election, "whenever Mr. Trudeau dares to call it."

He said the major parties disagree about the kind of industry that should be encouraged in the west. Liberal spokesmen think Alberta will have to concentrate on tourism and resource development.

"Those are both important of course," Clark said, "but we can be more than hewers of woods and drawers of tourists."

He argued that Alberta, in particular, has a great capacity for secondary industry, based on our natural resources, the new petrochemical potential of the tar sands, and the growing consumer market in Western Canada, and the Pacific Northwest states of the USA.

Clark warned that national policies will be set in the next four years which will determine Canada's industrial development for the next quarter century. The new Common Market in Europe, and the tougher line being taken by the USA, force Canada to plan which of our industries can best compete in international markets. Once that is decided, we must decide where these industries will be located in Canada.

He said that traditional policy would be to concentrate new secondary industry in Ontario and Quebec.

"I see do that, we will be stacking the decks against Alberta and the West. It would mean most of the new jobs and the new growth would go to the centre of the country, and we would be cut off out there," Clark said.

He said the Progressive Conservative party is the party of Western Canadian growth. "You saw that in the many strong western Canadians who are active in the PC party now."

Clark predicted that "the future of western Canada will be one of the major issues in the next campaign."

He said the Trudeau government will try to ignore economic issues, and concentrate on the personality of Mr. Trudeau, and that Conservatives must remind voters that "the real issue is which party will provide more jobs and growth for western Canada."

Dr. Paul Yewdack, member of parliament for Athabasca, Alberta, said the Trudeau government deliberately created unemployment in Canada. He reported that some Liberal MPs had stated their belief that Canada would just have to accept unemployment levels as high as 6%.

"Any party which says that, doesn't understand what it means to be unemployed."

Dr. Yewdack has been an MP for four years. In that period, the Trudeau government has used its power to weaken parliament, and destroy the protection that parliament can give the individual citizen.

He said voters in the next election should base their decision on three factors: first, the ability and stability of the party leaders; second, the record of the parties and their policies; third, "and most important," the ability of the candidates.

WHAT IS A HEALTH FOOD?

Essentially, a health food is a food which is sold in its natural state, with no processing or a minimum of treatment to alter its original nutritive quality.

An organic health food is grown or raised without the use of pesticides, sprays, or antibiotics and is taken to market in its natural state without additives or preservatives.

Generally, health foods, providing they are consumed in variety and chosen from the five food groups outlined in Canada's Food Guide, or with careful selection to ensure a proper balance of nutrients, are not harmful. Neither are they superior to foods chosen with equal care from the grocery store. They do however cost up to 50% more money.

When they promote cures for arthritis, cancer, heart disease, they may be harmful especially when they prevent a person from seeking competent help until it is too late.

Claims for special health benefits for particular foods are not only without basis in accepted scientific fact but since they may encourage a limitation of food selection are also potentially harmful. Canadian Dietary Standard is explicit in the recommended daily intake of essential nutrients and together with the food tables provides useful tools in evaluating diets and claims.

Certain practices recommended by health food promoters can be harmful to health. The insistence in avoiding additives has led in the U.S. to an avoidance of iodized salt and a subsequent increase in simple goitre. Iodization of salt is a public health measure in Canada and by Food and Drug Regulations, salt must contain iodine in the form of potassium iodide and be so labelled.

Health food faddings are at their most zealous when they condemn the milling of grain and the use of additives. They completely ignore the fact that milling is done primarily to make the grain more palatable and because whole grains easily become rancid, mouldy or mildewed and are apt to be infected by insects and attract rodents. In addition the current enrichment program restores the three B vitamins and iron removed during milling. Food additives have approximately 45 different functions which enhance the quality and shelf life of our foods and allow them to be shipped to market in an acceptable state.

A booklet "Food Additives — What They Are & How They Are Used" is available free from my office in Pincher Creek.

Bill Smiley

My Big Toe And World Hockey

Random notes this week. Could there be anything more silly than writing a column about your silly old toe breaking her silly old ankle, and four days later going out for a swim and breaking your own silly old big toe? Well, I did both.

And boy, it hurts, boy. Trouble is, there's not much the doctor can do about it. Had it X-rayed. He took a look at the plate, didn't even look at the toe, and cheerfully informed, "Yes, Bill, you've broken a chip of bone off it, but you can't put a cast on one toe, so just wear a comfortable shoe, wiggle the toe so it won't get stiff, and sweat it out." I'm sweating with every step. I didn't realize how many things you could bump your toe against. It hurts even when I kick the cat, which I don't do, but will, if she comes near my toe.

Enough about toes. Watch out for those bees. While waiting for the doc to talk about (guess what) my toe, two large and busy men came into emergency ward swelling like balloons from bee stings. One was the local veterinarian, six feet six and about 280. His right hand and arm were almost completely numb and it was spreading into his chest. He was disgusted. How could a silly little thing half an inch long do this to him?

And speaking of bees, how about those two clingers, Bobby Hull and Bobby Fischer, hockey player and chess master, in that order? Has ever so much media space been devoted to a couple of guys who are doing well what they enter and getting rich at it?

And speaking of Bobby Hull, what do you think of the World Hockey Association? It has stolen Hull and another half-dozen top hockey players from that far-from-benevolent monopoly, the N.H.L. Good luck to the W.H.A. I love to see a big organization kicked in the groin, or the pocketbook, in this case. "Particularly by its own slaves."

Why shouldn't a hockey player, a good one, make more money than a movie star? He's often a better actor.

And speaking about hockey, which is rather silly in this weather, have you ever read or heard anything more silly than the bleating of sports-writers, and even editorial writers, about the series with Russia?

The whole thing is getting rather jickening. It's just another symptom of our inferiority hang-up. We can't beat the U.S. at money. We can't beat the Chinese at ping-pong. We can't beat anybody at the Olympics, except maybe North Wales or West Tanzania. (With the notable exception of those nose-jumpers, who are pretty good.)

Why don't we just relax and enjoy it, as Confucius did not say? Why don't we forget the years when other countries were wobbly, ankle on skates and every red-blooded Canadian boy had a Simpson catalogue on one leg and an Eaton's catalogue on the other and could shoot a frozen horseball through a hair net, and we won the world championship twenty-eight to one every year?

Except. Remember that dreadful year (about 1936) when the British, of all people, beat our team in the Olympics? Their team, of course, was made up of Canadians living in England. Or Englishmen who had grown up in Canada. One of them was an English kid I went to school with. Another, so he claimed, was an old friend of mine, Squire Tanner, attending Cambridge. Another was George Hees, doing much the same, be-

Editorially SPEAKING

Newspapers Are Your Defence

"Getting it in the paper" means a number of things. For an organization planning a fund raising activity it can mean the difference between success and failure. For an advertiser it can mean the difference between profit and loss. For an individual who has been the victim of suffering it can mean consolation from readers who are informed of the suffering and take sympathy.

But other groups sometimes think "getting it in the paper" will mean disaster, embarrassment or failure. Sometimes they are correct. And sometimes — for the general welfare — it is better that the enterprise should end in failure and disaster.

But sometimes these people who do not want to "get in the paper" because they fear a setback or controversy are wrong. The newspaper's only enemy — is the rumor.

The rumor can be a terrible thing. It can make civic minded intentions look like opportunism. It can cultivate small controversies into massive ones. Eventually it can even tear a community apart. But the worst thing about a rumor is that its victims never get to tell their side. The rumor is a trial without a defence.

Some people and some groups don't think about this when they shy away from "publicity" as it is so often called. Their only consideration is that if people hear of their plans there may be some controversy.

They forget that there are more ways of hearing about something than reading it in the paper. And they forget too that many of the other ways will make their plans sound worse than they really are.

The newspaper will at least try to get the facts and figures — the correct ones — to the people. And the newspapers will print the reasons for the plans or proposals. A rumor can't guarantee either — and usually doesn't even care to bother trying.

So when you expect a problem or a little controversy, don't be afraid of "getting it in the paper."

What About People?

As this election-dominated summer proceeds, the federal government of the day has just received a bonus from the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, which predicts expansion for the Canadian economy during the next twelve months.

The OECD report is in line with others by economists who feel that all of North America and much of Western Europe will tick over reasonably well during the foreseeable future of twelve months.

To an extent this is reassuring news. Canada, for instance, is a country dependent to a unique degree upon export sales and it is pleasant to be told that the prospects for such sales in the product and commodity areas which count are good.

Even so, when all is said and done, these economic forecasts amount to nothing more than assembly of numbers by people whose business it is to assemble numbers. An assessment of how the results of increased production and trade actually benefit the people of the country is not regarded as an integral part of that function.

The OECD report did go so far as to mention that inflation and unemployment remain worrisome aspects of the Canadian economic scene. If they are worrisome to the economists, how do the individual human beings affected feel?

Lousy, that's how.

Despite the fact that production is up and wages are higher, Canadians today are uneasy. And this uneasiness will not be dispelled by the publication of hopeful figures in Paris.

Food prices spiral. People are aware that they are contributing 1972 dollars to pensions which may at retirement age yield incomes of a fraction of that value thanks to systematic debasement of the currency. Those who cannot work yearn to do so, and that yearning is not dispelled by the fictions of make-work programs, so-called retraining plans, and the subsidization of regions in the name of economic expansion.

The prevailing mood of many people is that things may be going just fine for some people, but not for them. And when the complaints of business, unions, and government are laid side by side the conviction grows that no sector of the economy is really happy, despite all the optimistic prognostications.

The challenge facing everyone is the translation of the gains in the figures to gains for human beings. More and more people feel they are being left out. Why not? They are being left out and they know it.

The significance of the OECD report, if any, lies in the opportunity that steadily increasing production provides for the resolution of human problems. Increased production alone means relatively little in the complicated, and very troubled, modern state.

Horoscope

THIS IS YOUR LIFE

By TRENT VARRO

DON'T PAY TO HAVE YOUR HOROSCOPE READ
— READ IT HERE !!!

ARIES—March 21 to April 20
New starts at this time should work out extremely well, if unmotivated by rash temperamental outbursts. Perhaps a recent trip, or communication from some distant point has set up a new dash of thought.

TAURUS—April 21 to May 20
You will presently get tremendous support in all dealings. This can be a most beneficial time for Taurus persons. Keep a clear head in matters of travel.

GEMINI—May 21 to June 20
The stars generally look good at this time for Gemini. Except for some rather poor aspects dealing in legal matters, you should be able to enjoy a quiet and serene time. Pull in your horns and remain passive.

CANCER—May 21 to June 20
Mars is still in a rather "touchy" aspect to your sign. This usually indicates quick, aggressive moves that are not sufficiently "thought out." This is the only poor aspect.

LEO—July 22 to August 21
Your chart is beginning to get the "go ahead" sign in business deals. Energy and vitality are favoured. Watch for chances to better yourself in matters pertaining to printing or publishing.

VIRGO—August 22 to Sept. 21
We often hear the saying "be a doer, not a dreamer." This is not quite the case at the present time in the sign Virgo. Someone once said "A dreamer lives forever, a toiler lives but a day."

LIBRA—Sept. 22 to Oct. 22
There is a strong possibility that you could tire yourself by trying to do too much in too short a time. Slow down until the end of September or nature may force you to do it.

SCORPIO—Oct. 23 to Nov. 21
The chart for Scorpio is excellent, except for investment dealings. It would be very wise to put off if you can, any outlay of money until a more favourable time.

SAGITTARIUS—Nov. 22 to Dec. 20
You will shortly pull out of a most difficult situation. DON'T PANIC, things aren't as bad as they seem. Clear thinking now will pay off later. Panic will only bring trouble.

CAPRICORN—Dec. 21 to Jan. 19
A very "lucky" move on your part should prove that there is more to astrology than meets the eye. Your intuitions are crystal clear at the present time. Watch for the "opportunity of a lifetime."

AQUARIUS—Jan. 20 to Feb. 18
The solar chart for Aquarius is very much the same as that of Virgo right now. You should read the paragraph for Virgo, and be guided by it.

PISCES—Feb. 19 to Mar. 20
It is quite possible that what appears to be a "romantic upheaval" could upset you now. It would be most foolish to "blow up" over this matter as it will settle itself.

DRIVE SAFELY . . .
. . . & SAVE A LIFE!

The Editor,
The Coleman Journal,
Coleman, Alberta.

Dear Sir:

Like many of your readers, I own property in Alberta. As a property owner, I am deeply disturbed by the implications — legal and social — contained in the Government of Alberta's Bill 107. I think the matter deserves wide public debate.

The Bill, an amendment to the Public Lands Act, has received first reading in the legislature. In essence, it would restrict the sale of Provincial Crown land to Canadian citizens or Canadian owned corporations.

The Bill would also provide, by means of a caveat, that the land is liable to be re-vested in the Crown in the event that "the registered owner or one of the registered owners is (a) a person who is not a Canadian citizen, or (b) a corporation that is not a Canadian corporation, or (c) a person or corporation acting as a trustee for a person who is not a Canadian citizen or for a corporation that is not a Canadian corporation."

The amendment defines "a Canadian corporation" as a corporation in which not less than 75% of the equity shares are owned by Canadians.

Although I question the wisdom of the board policy decision that lies behind this amendment, my main purpose here is to draw attention to certain specific principles that deserve close scrutiny by your readers.

The aim of this amendment is clearly to close certain loopholes in existing legislation. At present, all initial dispositions of public lands in Alberta are by "lease." Canadian citizens can purchase these leaseholds once building conditions have been met. Foreign citizens are not given this option; they must continue as leaseholders.

However, there now is nothing to prevent a Canadian citizen later reselling land purchased from the Crown to a non-Canadian if he so wishes. Bill 107 would change that situation. The caveat attached to the title would make all such land — public land sold after the act comes into force — liable to be re-vested in the Crown should it at any point be resold to a foreigner.

The overall purpose here is

LETTERS TO THE

simple enough. The complicating factor, of course, is how the legislation would operate. It is not hard to imagine the problems of title which may arise one hundred, fifty or only twenty years from now should it be discovered that somewhere along the line the land had been conveyed to a person or corporation failing to meet the citizenship qualifications. Even if the land had subsequently been sold again and conveyed back to a bonafide Canadian, the title would still be clouded and the new owner could never be certain that the province did not have some claim on his freehold possession.

In my opinion, Bill 107 introduces a discriminatory clause into the process whereby certain types of property are bought and sold. This in itself seems of dubious merit. The bill is an attempt to find a compromise between what should be two clear cut positions: either Crown land should be available for sale to anybody, without discrimination, whether they live in Baffin or Boston or Budapest; or Crown land should be available only by lease to Canadians and non-Canadians alike, a position adopted by the governments of Ontario and British Columbia.

Any middle position, which Bill 107 represents, is patently unfair and, I repeat, invites complicated legal repercussions. We are finally beginning to find firm ground after decades of confusion generated by the question of down rights. Introducing the question of true nationality in property transactions would lead us back into the muck.

Moreover, I am alarmed to note that a special committee of the legislature has been appointed to consider all foreign ownership in Alberta, including private as well as public lands. Should restrictions similar to those expressed by Bill 107 ever be extended to cover the sale of private land, the legal repercussions would not just be complicated; they would be horrendous.

In addition, as I am sure your readers will realize, a ban on the sale of private land to foreigners would drive down the value of private property throughout the province. It would also, in my opinion, violate fundamental rights in farm and recreational areas and, possibly, lead to a protracted constitutional argument.

I am as fervent a nationalist as the next man. But a policy that interferes with a person's right to sell his land to whomever he wishes — and we have the beginnings with Bill 107 of the sort of nationalism we fight wars against these days.

Yours sincerely,
Marvin Lee.

The Editor,
The Coleman Journal,

Dear Sir:

I wish to do some research on my grandfather, H. E. Lyon, who I believe at one time was mayor of Blairmore.

I understand there were numerous articles about him and his various duties and business ventures in the paper "The Blairmore Enterprise" during the period 1897-1909.

However, I find there is no longer a Blairmore paper and I wondered if you might know of the location of file copies from that period and whether or not I might be able to peruse them.

Yours sincerely,
Cynthia Milligan,
(Mrs. C. K. Milligan).
